GLOOMY VIEW.

A sorry progress is this life,
Along which disappointment lurks;
When e'er you're making proper speed
Some "thank ye-ma'm" your spirit
irks!

You know yourself just how it works.

You're born—your pet aversion's
clothes;

You grow—and hate each garment
less;

And then, the taste acquired at last,
Yourself must pay the bills for dress!

That is tough luck, as you'll confess.

For months you argue if you may
Allow yourself some luxury;
At last you reach the buying pitch—
The thing's grown a necessity!
You've simply got to have it, see?

Perhaps your income would not reach—

When did it e'er, in mortal's ken?
You win a 5 per cent increase—
The cost of living rises ten!
This is the common lot of men.

The more you do the more you must—
By this rule you will still abide,
Except that all the time you spend Here where to earthly things you're tied
The less you'll spend on t'other
side!

When in doubt it's a good idea to close your face.

The first thing many a man with a new automobile runs into is debt.

The woman who powders looks with contempt upon the one who paints.

With the possible exception of her tongue, a woman can usually hold her own.

One way to insult a man who offers you a job lot of free advice is not to take it.

A pretty girl is apt to remind a man of a bee—suggesting either honey
or a sting.

Always let your wife buy your ties.
She knows just the kind that will
queer you with other women.

The most important part of a man's postscript is the letter. With a woman it's the other way round.

Mamma (severely)—"Johnny, what made you take that cake from the pantry?"

Johnny—"My appetite, mamma."

Lillian (aged 4)—Mamma, you're not a girl, are you?

Mamma—"No, dear. I used to be a little girl, but now I'm a woman.

Lillian—Then what became of the little girl you used to be?

was given a piece of bread and butter,
and politely said: "Thank you."

"That's right, James," said the lady
"I like to hear little boys say 'Thank you.'"

"Well," rejoined James, "if you want to hear me say it again you might put some jam on it."

Filing an Exception.

"Time and tide wait for no man;
you know," quoted the sententious
boarder.

"That isn't more than half true," objected the argumentative boarder.
"Time waited for Joshua once, nearly
a whole day."

Unseemly Frankness.

Taft delegate (from New England)
—I think it is shocking for Col. Roosevelt, in speaking of the result of these contests, to call it a "naked theft."

Kansas Delegate—You'd have him
call it an "undraped appropriation,"
would you?

Appalling Mistake.

"At the prayer meeting the other night," confided Mrs. Goodsole, wife of the pastor, "Brother Jolliffe made the most awful blunder you ever heard of."

"What was it," inquired Mrs. Hardesty.

"He started the hymn, 'Tell Me the Old, Old Story,' to the tune of 'Has Anybody Here Seen Kelly?'"
